

20th August 2013

Dear Customer

Further to the documentation announced by Anglia yesterday, this advanced Product Termination Notice shows which of the affective products you have purchased from Anglia in the past 12 months.

The details yesterday showed all parts which are affected following ST's statement concerning obsolescence of a number of commodity products. This obsolescence is with immediate effect.

Attached is a copy of the original statement from ST for your reference.

Yours Faithfully

Subject: Product Portfolio Changes

Dear Customer,

Thank you for your continuing business and use of STMicroelectronics components. We would like to inform you of recent decisions that may concern some of the ST products you are using.

STMicroelectronics is revisiting the life cycles of selected members of its product portfolio due to market conditions and factory consolidations. As a result, ST will be suspending production soon of certain part numbers that are primarily commodity products but have multiple vendor alternatives.

The affected products have significant existing inventories at our distribution partners which will help in case you have not yet specified other vendors for these products. We hope that these conditions will make your adjustments to your bill of materials straightforward as a result of these changes.

The major impacted products are:

- LOGIC Devices
- Standard Analog families in mature DIP packages

Please find attached to this letter the list of affected part numbers for your notification. We are ready to assist you in finding alternate solutions, should you need assistance, and to offer cross references to other supplier products.

We apologize for the inconvenience and would like to assure you that we will do our best to help and assist you in the transition period. Please contact your local ST sales individual or authorized Distributor should you require further information.

Sincerely,

Frank Wolinski
